

GREEKS CLAIM 1,200 ITALIANS CAPTURED

Defending Troops Also Report Pushing Seven Miles Into Albanian Territory.

By The Associated Press

Fighting over snow-blanketed mountains, Greeks Alpine troops were reported to have driven seven miles into Italian-held Albania today, pushing the Fascist supply base at Koritza and capturing 1,200 Italian prisoners.

Dispatches from Yugoslavia said the fall of Koritza, in the northern sector of the 100-mile Balkan war front, was "expected yesterday."

In the southern sector, Greek defenders were said to have repulsed Italian columns in fierce hand-to-hand fighting with bayonets and grenades.

The Greek high command said a heavy Italian attack in the mountains of Epirus province, preceded by 15 consecutive bombing raids against Greek defense positions, had been routed with the destruction of nine Fascist tanks.

Stefani, the official Italian news agency, acknowledged that Premier Mussolini's legions were meeting stiff Greek resistance in the Ioannina (Janina) region at the end of the front.

A Stefani war correspondent reported that the Italian invaders had "entered" Greek territory "ranging distances" and he added:

"The Italian advance failed to gain the lightning rhythm because of bad weather prevailing for several days and because of bad roads... swampy strips interrupted here and there by dynamite mines exploded by the Greek rear guard."

The Greeks, he said, were fighting with British and French artillery, rifles, ammunitions and warplanes.

British Give Aid

Concrete British aid to the Hellenic kingdom took a two-fold turn. Official circles in London confirmed that British troops were landed on the Greek island of Crete, opposite the Italian Dodecanese islands. The British poured $80,000,000 into Greece's defense coffers.

British naval assistance in striking at the Italian invasion was also indicated in sketchy reports of a sea battle Sunday evening west of the island of Corfu, at the lower end of the Greek-Italian frontier.

The Athens radio said that 30 minutes after firing at sea was heard "a large vessel was seen ablaze, steaming northward," toward Italian defense bases—indicating the ship was Italian.

At the same time, British RAF bombers, now presumably operating from Greek bases, caused a heavy and 45-minute attack on the Italian capital's first air strike since July 24—and also attacked Naples again.

Mussolini's high command said that the RAF raiders failed to reach Rome, although the capital's populace was awakened by the wall of air-raid sirens at 3:45 a. m. and that the planes which attacked Rome were "anti-aircraft fire" forcing them to drop their bombs in the open countryside.

In Athens, authoritative quarters summed up the week-end conflict as "developing satisfactorily" and the semi-official Greek news agency asserted Italian claims of having "penetrated" the Greek defense line were "a tissue of scurrilous lies."

"The Italians talk of conquest of vast territories containing hundreds of thousands of inhabitants. In reality they are still being held in the frontier region where indeed certain points are already under attack. The Greek army, last week, the Italians claim, had advanced 25 miles in the Ioannina sector, capturing 70 villages."

Daring Night Attack

Reports from Belgrade said Greek veterans in a daring venture, crossed Lake Prespa in small boats at night and fell upon an Italian garrison in Albanian territory.

The Italian high command again gave only the briefest mention of the Balkan war, asserting that five "enemy" planes were shot down in an air fight over Salonika.

Germany was reported sending thousands of her crack mechanized and infantry troops into Rumania today—perhaps for a southwest thrust against Greece and Turkey to aid Italy's slow-moving offensive from Albania.

Saves Reported Linked the heavy Nazi concentration in Rumania with an expected meeting of Italian foreign minister Count Ciano, Nazi Foreign Minister Von

A New Mystery Serial Story

Sally's week-end party in her beautiful, but lonely old southern house started out as the quiet celebration of an engagement. It might have continued quiet if Aunt Maggie had not crashed the party and Eve had not dropped in to look over the man she had lost. But Aunt Maggie was killed, and Eve stirred up many old flames, and death and jealousy made an eerie madhouse out of a good time. Two of Marion county's draft boards continued their task of checking over their national "master lists" of order numbers today and the third board was to start its work tonight.

Just when the boards will be ready to announce their local order numbers is indefinite, but all three probably will have them listed and posted by late this week or early next week.

Boards 1 and 3 have been working on the lists since Saturday. Board 2 will start at a meeting tonight.

A few late registration cards continue to trickle in with the result that the county's registration totals this morning were:

Board 1 (Wards 1, 2 and 3)—2,266; Board 2 (Wards 4, 5 and 6)—1,345; Board 3 (rural)—1,450. Grand total for county—5,061.

This is only 10 less than registered here on Oct. 16. Nearly 300 cards of Oct. 16 registrants were later transferred from the county.

Two Under-Age Volunteers

Board No. 1 also announced this morning the first two under-age volunteers, young men below the draft age limit of 21. This brings the grand total of the county's volunteers to 16.

Homer D. Pardow, 19, of 205 Leader street. Right after him came Harry LeRoy Himmenger, 20, of Jackson and Oliver streets.

Both had to present to board officials the consent of their parents. Both also had to register under the draft regulations and have their names on the master list.

KILLED IN CHINA

Ribbentrop, and Germany's ambassador to Turkey, Franz von Papen. Count Ciano was reported yesterday to have flown to Germany from his active air command in Albania.

Italian airmen continued to pound at Salonika, the Greek port at the north end of the Aegean sea. Aided by Britain, Greece pitted her small air force against Italy to hammer at Fascist troop concentrations and supply depots along the Albanian frontier.

A Greek communiqué on yesterday's bombings said merely that there were "dead and injured among civilians."

No Night Alarm

For the first time in eight weeks, London went all night without an air raid alarm, but low-flying German raiders machine-gunned Sunday daytime strollers, cyclists and motorists in East Anglia.

Soviet Russia rejected a British protest that Russia's present participation in negotiations with Germany, Italy and Rumania for a new Danube commission to administer the river trafficway constituted a violation of neutrality.

Authorized Nazi quarters in Berlin, countering rumors of a new peace move by Adolf Hitler, said all such talk was "made in England" and intended to influence the United States presidential elections tomorrow.

These quarters said the axis had no desire to offer England peace. Successful attacks by far-ranging British bombers last night on Kiel, Germany's great naval base, and Naples, port and industrial center in southern Italy, were reported today by the air ministry in London.

A brief communiqué said the raids were carried out "in spite of extremely difficult weather conditions" by planes of the bomber command—land based.

It was the second British raid on Naples in four days. The communiqué, like the announcement of the first raid, failed to indicate what bases the British raiders operated from.

(The Italian communiqué said the British bombers were "met by a barrage of anti-aircraft fire" and were forced to drop their bombs in open country, where one person was killed and several injured.)

CAMPAIGN COMES TO NOISY CLOSE IN NATION TONIGHT

NEFFNER SEES BIG OHIO VOTE

Predicts Turn-Out Tuesday of 3,250,000 Will Set New Record for State.

By The Associated Press

Ohio's free-for-all election campaign swept into its final round today amid predictions of record balloting tomorrow.

Secretary of State George Neffner said he expected the 1936 all-time high of 3,045,116 votes to be eclipsed despite forecasts of election day shivers. Some observers said the total might reach 3,250,000 in the wake of the most spirited campaigning in recent years.

Election board officials in Cuyahoga county, where more than an eighth of the state's 8,875 precincts are located, predicted the vote there would range between 550,000 and 580,000, exceeding by nearly 100,000 the high of four years ago when President Roosevelt's county majority was 182,000.

In Ohio Twice

Making his second Ohio visit during the campaign, Mr. Roosevelt broadcast from Cleveland Saturday night in his bid for the state's 26 electoral votes and a third term. He asked "a vote of confidence" from the nation.

His Republican opponent, Wendell L. Willkie, has made three campaign trips into the state. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, who lost to Willkie in the presidential nomination scramble, will speak in Cleveland tonight. Billed as a reply to Mr. Roosevelt, it will be broadcast at 8:30 p. m.

Interest in the presidential race, expected by leaders of both parties to be close in Ohio, hasn't lessened intensity of the spirited battles between Gov. Bricker, Republican incumbent, and his Democratic opponent, former Gov. Martin L. Davey, and the U. S. senatorial candidates, Republican Mayor Harold H. Burton of Cleveland and John McSwain, Wooster Democrat.

Counters Davey Claim

The four toured Cuyahoga county over the week-end. Governor Bricker, citing Davey's claims that Cleveland newspapers printed matter "to discredit the former administration," told Republican workers:

"I am proud and grateful that our administration has been conducted so as not to cause a single reputable newspaper to make any charge of official misconduct against us. It is hardly necessary to remind the public that the same can not be said of the previous administration."

Davey retorted at ward meetings his claim of "mildly in the present administration's handling of relief and old age pensions." Both candidates give their regular weekly broadcasts tonight, Bricker from Columbus at 8:45 p. m. and Davey from Canton at 7:15 p. m.

Dr. Francis E. Townsend, founder of the old age pension plan bearing his name, said in a Cleveland address last night, "I'd rather take a chance on a native-born Chinaman as President than Mr. Roosevelt, and urged Willkie's election."

Charles Sawyer, Democratic national committeeman, said Mr. Roosevelt would carry the state by "upwards of 150,000," while J. Freer Blittinger, party state chairman, claimed a 320,000 majority for Davey.

Ed D. Schorr, Republican state chairman, said Willkie's majority would be "upwards of 200,000," and that Governor Bricker would be elected by an "almost unbelievably large" majority.

Polls open at 6:30 a. m. and close at 6:30 p. m.

Big Crowd Joins Scouts in Harding Pilgrimage

Three Wreaths on Tombs in Ninth Annual Ceremony; Columbus Man Talks on Youth and Defense.

A crowd estimated at 3,000 persons, including some 1,000 Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts, took part in the ninth annual scout pilgrimage to the Harding Memorial yesterday.

It was one of the largest crowds since the annual birthday tribute to President and Mrs. Harding was inaugurated.

Highlighting the program at the Memorial following a parade from the uptown district was a wreath-laying ceremony, including the placing of a wreath from President Roosevelt. The principal speaker, Earl F. Morris, youthful Columbus attorney, praised the isolationist policies of President Harding and declared the youth of today must make themselves strong physically, mentally and spiritually to insure the freedom of America in years to come.

Out of Town Groups

Leaders reported virtually all Boy Scouts in the Harding Area council took part in the parade and the service at the Memorial. Marion's Girl Scouts joined in the observance as did large groups from many nearby communities. There were nearly 300 Boy Scouts from cities outside the Harding area, including groups from Sandusky, Mansfield, Springfield, Columbus, Cincinnati, Lima, Columbus and a delegation of 170 scouts from the Putnam-Han-Sen area which includes Putnam, Hancock and Seneca counties. The Harding area is composed of Marion, Morrow and Wyandot counties and western Crawford county.

The parade from Central Junior High school to the Memorial attracted several thousand spectators and a large number followed the scouts to the Memorial and took part in the public ceremony.

Col. T. E. Andrews was grand marshal for the parade. He was assisted by L. H. Larson, D. J. MacDonald, W. E. Orcutt, William R. Martin, William Arndt and T. E. Kinnear.

"Youth and Defense"

Speaking on "Youth and National Defense," Mr. Morris went back 20 years to the election of President Harding, pointing out that the American people in that election indicated they favored an isolationist philosophy for America, a policy of non-involvement in Europe's affairs. Tracing foreign affairs to the present day, he pointed out that America has been forced to modify its position due to the rise of "the same forces of ruthlessness and aggression that were loosed in 1914."

"But America has become invulnerable against her will," he declared. "She has not modded. She has remained true to her decision made in electing your fellow townsman president. Events have, however, forced her into Europe's affairs—events which slowly but surely began to tell the American people that this time her help will not be pulling British chestnuts out of the fire but will really be strengthening our own first line of defense. Events have forced a change in our philosophy of 1920."

Speaking of the part that the youth of America can play in building national defense, Mr. Morris urged that youth develop a sound body, a well-trained mind and a spiritual force "to give them direction."

Strong bodies and good minds are essential because the manhood of America in the future depends upon the development of these attributes in youth today, he said. Building strong bodies and good minds today means building a greater America of tomorrow, he said.

"There must also be a spiritual force to give youth direction," he declared. "That spiritual force is a belief in democracy."

Democracy, he said, is that theory of government which insures an equal opportunity and freedom of thought, speech and action to every individual.

"An Abraham Lincoln rising from a log cabin to become 'The Great Emancipator,' your own Harding rising from a Marion newspaper editor to the presidency—that is equality of opportunity," he said. "That is democracy. Democracy insures to each of you that you and you alone shall be the masters of your destiny."

Greatest Vote in History Is Predicted; Both Sides Confident in County.

Victory in tomorrow's election was forecast today by both Democratic and Republican party leaders of Marion county, as final preparations were made for handling a record-breaking vote of around 2,200,000.

Election board officials are throwing every possible piece of equipment into use—including some ancient voting booths which have seen better days—and have taken other steps to avoid any hitch between 6:30 a. m. and 6:30 p. m., tomorrow's voting hours.

Predicts G. O. P. Victory

French Crow, Marion county Republican chairman, today predicted a sweeping county and district victory.

"Congressman Smith and other district candidates will carry substantially the same vote as the governor (2,500 majority) and the entire Republican ticket in the county will be elected with majorities running as high as 3,000," he said.

He said that in his judgment American voters are decidedly against the third term and declared that this issue is reflected in Marion county's political scene this year.

Mr. Crow also commented that the Republican candidates have carried on a "very fair, straight-shooting campaign."

For the race for governor, Mr. Crow said he believed Bricker will carry Marion county by substantially the same majority (2,500) that he had two years ago.

"Every newspaper poll shows that we will win," he said, "but the real poll will be taken tomorrow night and nobody knows how that will come out."

Democrats Forecast Victory

"In going over our records and surveys in both the district and county," Dr. C. J. Altmeyer, county Democratic chairman, said today, "we're confident that President Roosevelt will carry the district and will be supported by the election of Kenneth Petri to congress."

Dr. Altmeyer also declared the Democrats are confident that in Marion county the President will have a majority of from 1,700 to 2,000 and that former Gov. Dewey will have a majority of from 600 to 900.

"With the head of the ticket going Democratic, we expect all of the county candidates to be successful," he said.

Of the campaign now drawing to a close he said, "With few exceptions, it could be considered a very clean campaign. We used nothing but facts."

"We're convinced the third term argument has fallen through because everybody knows that experience is worth more than promises," he said of the national scene.

Dr. Altmeyer declared the arguments used this year were very similar to those of 1936 and 1932.

To Enforce Time Limit

Anticipating a huge vote, election officials here have directed presiding judges of the county's 57 precincts to enforce the law which provides that no persons shall be in a voting booth longer than five minutes.

While it is true that most persons vote in considerably less time than that, it is not rare for some people to take a half hour to mark their ballots—officials reported.

Every precinct will have its full quota of booths—some more than usual—ranging from three to five, depending on the size of the precinct.

There will be 342 precinct officials at work—six in each precinct (Turn to LOCAL VOTE, Page 7)

THE ROAD TO SHANI LUN

by Rita Moffet Hanson

CHAPTER THIRTY-FOUR Tara's Prisoner

TEMU glanced at the mouth from which those words came as if for a moment he contemplated some sort of sweet violence against it. "Some day, somebody's going to nip off the end of that sharp little tongue of yours if you don't reform."

She shrugged. "You see," she said, "we start out to play and we end up in a quarrel. There's no goddess in me."

He turned his pony aside to round a sharp outcrop of shale.

Hold back the years
-to look well
-to feel strong

Thousands know of the amazing benefits of S.S.S. Tonic to help build rich, red blood... to increase the appetite... to aid digestion

If you are past middle-life you will want to give particular attention to two important body functions—one, to keep your natural stomach digestive juices flowing... two, to keep your blood rich and healthy.

Frequently, as the years advance, the stomach becomes sluggish in pouring out its digestive juices to make use of the food eaten... likewise, wear and strain of worry, overwork, colds, and sickness often reduce one's blood strength. Now you may rebuild your blood strength and restore sluggish stomach digestion, in the absence of an organic trouble or focal infection, with the famous S.S.S. Tonic.

S.S.S. acts two ways
In S.S.S. Tonic you go after the trouble in two ways... first you increase the appetite and better your stomach digestion—thus making better use of the food you eat—secondly, this, weak, watery blood is made rich and red again thus giving you a boost in energy.

Join the happy thousands
S.S.S. may be just what you need to get you on the right road to health and happiness again... it helps build sturdy health... that's why so many say it "makes you feel like yourself again."

Chronic bronchitis may develop if your cough, chest cold, or acute bronchitis is not treated and you cannot afford to take a chance with any medicine less potent than Creomulsion which goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes.

Creomulsion blends beechwood essence by special process with other time tested medicines for coughs. It contains no narcotics.

No matter how many medicines you have tried, tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough, permitting rest and sleep, or you are to have your money back. (Adv.)

man who goes to any length to win her for himself, but when he breaks all the laws to secure her for another man, it's not so complimentary."

Temu grinned. "I stand corrected."

Across the plain from the north appeared tiny moving specks on the landscape. Through the glasses they proved to be a splendidly mounted band of horsemen armed to the teeth.

"Chinese opium runners most likely," he said. "They follow the less frequented trails of hill and desert. Probably headed for Lann-fou."

A thrill of excitement went through Lynn. "Or they may be a party of Dick's men out looking for me."

He increased the pace of his lame horse. "I can see they are not, but still I wish to avoid them." Lynn hung back. He halted and called, "Come! Hurry!"

She took her time and when she caught up with him deliberately dismounted. "I don't want to hurry," she said.

He was out of his saddle in a flash and strode to her side. "Mount your horse at once, Lynn."

Instead she sat down on a convenient boulder. He caught hold of her upper arms and drew her to her feet. She went limp and would have fallen had he not supported her. He shook her a bit. "Shall I tie you to your horse?" he demanded.

"How long would it take?" she asked calmly, her eyes on the fast approaching cavalcade. Lynn was a tall girl, firmly built and well proportioned. He lifted her as lightly as if she were a dummy and fastened her to the saddle with a leather thong about her waist. Then he mounted his own horse, caught up her pony's rein, and made for the treks of a deep canyon.

Hard Crossing

It was one of the greatest chasms that Lynn had ever seen. On some of the more terrifying ledges she was glad to be tied to the saddle. In one particular place iron crowbars had been driven in to the perpendicular, thousand-foot cliff, and on these cross-pieces, broad flat stones were placed.

Temu dismounted and led his horse across while Lynn watched with suspended breath. The animal trembled with fear, but there was some power in the man that compelled obedience. When it had almost completed the passage it stumbled. Lynn stifled a scream. Temu jumped back nimbly, escaping death by a hair's breadth, and somehow, drew the horse safely after him.

He came back to Lynn's side. A little sprinkling of golden-brown wreckers stood out across the bridge of her nose. He regarded her pallor for a moment before he spoke.

"Don't be frightened, Tara Lynn. It is not in the stars that harm shall come to you on the desert road. Will you ride across or walk?"

"I'd rather fly," she said tremulously.

He smiled and unfastened the thong that bound her and had her dismount. He took one of her hands.

"To fly is not possible." His hand on hers had power. Her consciousness lifted.

He drew her easily to the firm footing of solid ground on the farther side. She stood leaning against him a moment, breathing deep and slow, her eyes shut while he scrutinized the long lashes trembling against cheeks in which faint color pulsed. Then she stepped back and looked at him, a vague smile curving her lips.

"You must have hypnotized me," she said. He did not deny it.

"All ideas are hypnotic. Cling to those that do not limit your powers."

He went back and brought her pony across.

"I doubt if the opium smugglers will come this way," he said. They mounted and continued the descent until they reached the canyon going near the flat bottom of the canyon.

Then suddenly on a curve above a gravel slope, Temu's horse stumbled and went over. Temu jumped. He landed clear, on the edge of the bank but his head struck a rock and he lay still in a strange, unnatural position.

Lynn dismounted and ran to his side. She turned him over, face to the sky. A trickle of blood ran down his temple. With shaking hands she wiped it away. It wet her handkerchief and more came. "She had no water," there was little she could do. She stared at Temu's face, pale under the weathered bronze, yet serene and strong, almost stern, even in this sleep of unconsciousness. Never had she felt more helpless.

At last with an effort she rose and moved him into a more comfortable position at the edge of the trail. Then she walked up and down trying to compose herself and still the excited beating of her heart. Presently in panic-stricken tones she ventured to call. No answering sound came except a mocking echo and a bounding slide of rocks. She picked her way down the trail towards the level floor of the main gorge, calling and listening, calling and listening.

Finally she fancied she heard an answering voice. Then she caught a single note as if metal struck against stone. She ran farther along the trail until she could hear the ring of shod hoofs and the jingle of accoutrements. A band of Mongol horsemen rounded a cliff and came into view. They were traveling down the canyon floor.

Lynn recognized the leader. She caught her breath in astonishment.

New Plan

"Chin Pak!" she called. He heard her voice and with an answering shout led his men up the side trail. They dismounted and knelt in deep respect. Dick must have sent him in search of her.

"Chin Pak," she demanded, "who am I?"

He touched his head to the ground and raised it. "The Goddess Tara."

"You told me once you wished to serve the Tara."

"Yes, Missie, it is true."

"Now think carefully and answer me this: Are you loyal to me above all men?"

"Above all men, Missie. Are you not one with the gods?"

He met her eyes with genuine devotion.

"Can depend on you?"

"To the death, Missie."

She asked abruptly: "Where is my brother?"

"He goes to Dorchi to carry out his plans. He says he find you and follow him."

"And you will obey?"

"If that is your wish, Missie."

Then she told him that Temu Darin was lying on the trail above, unconscious. "He is my prisoner," she added. "He must not be harmed or turned over to my brother or the Duke of Sachto. He belongs to me. Do you understand?"

"Yes, Missie, Temu Darin belongs to the Tara."

She pointed to the water bag hanging to his saddle. He directed certain of the men to make camp on the canyon floor. Then he and one other mounted their ponies and climbed up the trail.

When Lynn arrived at the spot, Temu was sitting up holding his head. The wound had stopped bleeding. Chin Pak was offering him a bowl of water. Temu glanced at her and grinned faintly.

"This young fellow tells me I am your prisoner."

"Turn about is fair play," she smiled. "How do you feel?"

"A bit groggy, that's all."

"You see it doesn't work," she mocked him with one of his own arguments. "You can't escape your destiny. You may evade the Chinese wiles only to get caught by Dick's and my men. Let Chin Pak help you to his horse and take you down to camp."

"I believe I can climb on a horse by myself." He rose and proceeded to do so. Lynn caught the bridle rein; she wasn't taking any chances. Temu grinned again. Chin Pak took the prisoner's revolver and placed it in his own belt. He led the horse down the trail.

Lynn turned and followed the other man who had clambered down the slide to the place where Temu's horse lay dead among the boulders. The Mongol had removed the equipment and was waiting respectfully for her on the trail above. She noticed that shadows were already deepening on the ridges. Her own horse whinnied impatiently.

Down at the camp on the floor of the gorge, she found Temu lying on a bearskin rug in a blue and white tent. He was looking pale and worn, and let down.

"I've not had enough sleep in days," he sighed. The wound had begun to bleed afresh. She surprised he had struggled to resist his captors. He fell asleep while she dressed the cut. A smiling tenderness flooded her heart.

For President

Why Elect Willkie?

The Public Opinion Polls show that YOU — the undecided voter — will decide the election. Tomorrow, you may determine the course all human civilization is to take. The fact that you still have an open mind shows that you are trying to reason your way coolly. This being so, we present Mr. Willkie's case — which is really Democracy's Case.

For America's Sake Elect These Men—

HAROLD H. BURTON
For U. S. Senator

FREDERICK C. SMITH
For Representative

JOHN W. BRICKER
For Governor

There are valid and sufficient reasons why both Republicans and Democrats should elect Willkie and McNary and should give them a supporting Congress. Some of these reasons are:

A Willkie victory is essential for the restoration of confidence in the government, for the arousing of business and commercial interest, and for a return of that faith and optimism which have been almost killed in more than seven years of New Deal operation.

Election of Willkie means that we shall have in the presidency a man of wider and more varied experience, a man clearly in touch with the average man and the common people.

Willkie's elevation to the presidency will insure that the three constitutional departments of government will again function as the Constitution provides, and that Congress will be liberated from its servility to White House commands. It will serve notice that the American people cling to their tradition of 160 unbroken years, and no future executive will dare run for a third successive term.

For the Republicans to win will not mean any drastic revolutionary changes, for none such is advocated. What will be accomplished will be the stopping of wild extravagance, experimentation and recklessness — and it will mark the end of the centralization of power in executive hands.

We shall have, furthermore, a definite foreign policy, not a makeshift, uncertain one such as we have had under Roosevelt, and there will be no meddling with the affairs of other nations. In an orderly, methodical fashion we shall have adequate defense, not a hasty-burly sudden scheme.

Finally, with the defeat of Mr. Roosevelt will come a new alignment in the Democratic party, and it will be again the party of its fathers and their sons, and proud of its record. We shall have, indeed, a renewal of the two-party system, the safeguard of this republic.

WHY DEFEAT ROOSEVELT?

The thing to be most desired for the future well-being of this country is the defeat of Roosevelt. Naturally steadfast Republicans in party allegiance will argue that Roosevelt ought to be defeated because he is a Democrat. This is neither a sufficient answer nor the right one. But for Republicans and Democrats WHO ARE NOT NEWDEALERS there are other reasons why election day should make him an ex-president.

After hearing and reading the campaign speeches of the New Deal orators and the President of the United States himself, we are more fully convinced that it is the purpose of the New Deal to destroy the American system and to establish in its stead a highly centralized government with the power of life and death over its citizens reposing in the hands of its leaders at Washington.

That was no slip of the tongue that prompted the President to utter in his Boston speech the other night "My Ambassador at the Court of St. James." He was referring, of course, to Joseph P. Kennedy, who, you and I have thought, is the representative of the people of the United States to Great Britain. He said it with the same egoism and pride that Stalin, Mussolini or Hitler feel when they refer to their representatives in this country. The presidential utterance was calculated to be an announcement to the American people that Mr. Roosevelt now considers himself to be "the state." The spectacle of the President of the United States recalling American ambassadors back to this country for the purpose of making political speeches in behalf of his reelection seems to be complete proof of the fact that the President feels that these men are his puppets and not the representatives of the people of a sovereign nation, the servants of the last great democracy in the world.

The record of his eight years shows his insatiable appetite for more power. He has attempted to pack the Supreme Court, he has sought to purge senators who opposed him, he has made the Congress compliant to his will.

He has had an unstable and uncertain foreign policy. He has been dilatory with defense for seven years and then has suddenly called for huge defense programs and for conscription.

He has condemned business and encouraged governmental competition with private enterprise. He has built up an overwhelming public debt and has squandered billions. He has had all sorts of alphabetical authorities and projects, yet there are as many people unemployed as there were when he began.

He has dealt with foreign governments as to supplying machines and munitions of war without even consulting Congress. He promised to cut down the list of appointees and federal employees, but, instead, has increased that list many times.

Finally, the crowning reason why he should be defeated is that, if he should be given a third term the totalitarianism and the near dictatorship of these two terms would seem mild and bountiful in blessings in comparison with what the third term will bring. He has tried to make this nation deem him the "INDISPENSABLE MAN." His defeat will indicate that the nation does not believe that any indispensable man exists within its borders.

Unless a majority of the American people are so deluded and muddled as to believe that a dictatorship is preferable to a free democracy they will vote overwhelmingly for Wendell L. Willkie.

VI—Sincerity

(This is the last of a series of editorials summing up Wendell L. Willkie's qualifications to be President of the United States.)

PREJUDICE aside, the most bitter critics of Wendell Willkie must be aware of his sincerity. He has helped to check the rising tide of cynicism about politics. Even those who disagree with his faith in free enterprise recognize that when he says he believes in it he means it. In the weeks he has been traveling up and down across America his countrymen have seen him survive the hardest test a political candidate can be given. If Wendell Willkie hadn't believed in what he was saying he would have given up. There are $75,000-a-year jobs he could have for the asking.

Except for his comments on spot news and his answers to specific charges, Wendell Willkie's entire campaign message can be found in something he wrote early last spring—"We, the People: A Petition." It was addressed to both political parties and read, in part, as follows:

"In the decade beginning 1930 you have told us that our day is finished, that we can grow no more, and that the future cannot be the equal of the past. But we, the people, do not believe this, and we say to you: Give up this vested interest that you have in depression, open your eyes to the future, help us to build a New World.

"In this decade you have separated 'business' and 'industry' from the ordinary lives of the people and have applied against them a philosophy of hate and mistrust, but we, the people, say: Business and industry are part of our daily lives; in hurting them you hurt us.

"In this decade, under the banners of reform, you have usurped our sovereign power by curtailing the Bill of Rights, by short-circuiting the states, and by placing in the hands of a few men in executive commissions all the powers requisite to tyranny; and we, the people, say to you: We do not want monopolistic government, any more than we want monopolistic industry. Give us back the powers that our forefathers declared to be ours; liberate us to govern ourselves by law."

Win or lose, Wendell Willkie in 1940 proved himself a capable, courageous spokesman for all who recognized that they were making a stand in the United States against Big Government.

Where's Capone?

SOMEHOW the idea that the axis big fellows missed a bet by not hiring Al Capone when he scuttled out of Alcatraz is hard to dismiss. When Al was in his prime he knew the game of "pressure politics" forward and backward.

The big idea is to knock over the little fellows—the Danmarks, Norways, Albanias, Poland and Greeks. Theoretically, they're all under the protection of organized society, or something like that, but if a mugger acts fast enough organized society never quite catches up. Then one fine day maybe organized society itself finds it would be healthier to take orders from the gangsters than to listen to a lot of old fuddy-duddies. They had to put Al in the jug on a technicality to keep him from getting away with it, he was that foxy.

The Italian invasion of Greece through Albania, which had been planned for that very purpose, is something Al can understand if he's reading the papers. Sure, the British said they wouldn't let it happen, but the British are having trouble enough with Adolf to keep them busy. And the Turks and Russians—what can they do but holler? Why the whole thing's a pushover. Even if the Greeks don't turn out to be cooperative it's a pushover. The Poles tried to make something of it and what happened to them. It's a racket that can't be beaten.

Maybe so, maybe so, but rackets do get beaten; they always do, even if they have to put the head racketeers away on a technicality. It's the only thing that keeps gangsters from running the world, something they've been itching to do for a long time and haven't quite done yet.

Without American Aid

"WITHOUT American aid," says Mussolini's own newspaper, "England already would have collapsed."

This statement from one of the axis partners voices the best reason of all why the United States must not be involved in the war in either ocean.

As a non-belligerent devoting her full strength to the production of war supplies and furnishing much of the output to England, this country is sending the British fighting men the things they need so vitally and which they are putting to such good use. As a participant it would be so hard put to outfit its own armies that there would be nothing left for the other great democracy and it might perish while America was getting ready. The United States at peace is a stronger ally for liberty than a United States at war.

News Behind the News

Swing Toward Willkie Stirs Up Near Panic Among Roosevelt Leaders.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4—Dis-couragement akin to panic has beset much of the Roosevelt leadership on the eve of the election. It has been kept well in hand and away from the public ear, although it started about two weeks ago, and has increased constantly since then.

At that time it was decided to pull Mr. Wallace, the vice presidential candidate, off the farm battle ground, although that had been his special battlefield and his standing there had furnished the main reason for his choice as running mate.

He was shifted into other areas, mostly industrial, for the remainder of the campaign. Rushed to the hustings to take his place was his supposedly non-political successor in the cabinet, Agriculture Secretary Claude Wickard.

The change, although engineered in such a natural way that its significance did not become apparent, signaled a complete reversal of Roosevelt grand strategy. Wallace's efforts to accentuate the imminence of war crisis—as a justification for a third term—scared the farmers who do not want war. Wickard, who replaced him, immediately hewed to the pacifying line holding out the reverse prospect of maintaining peace through defense.

The whole White House campaign had to switch around suddenly that way.

Trend

Many of the Democratic congressmen running for reelection have been unnerved by the stretch surge of Willkie. One such, from Missouri, a state which a month ago was counted surely Roosevelt, expressed serious doubts to his colleagues over the week-end as to whether he could pull himself through. His wall was that he could defeat his Republican congressional opponent easily enough, but was doubtful of what the Willkie trend would do to him.

Maryland was another state typically reflecting the sudden uncalculated upheaval. Registration in certain counties there showed substantial increases which carried implications of a major Republican trend in a state theretofore considered a Roosevelt cinch.

Breaks

Those who trust in trends and cycles have also noted that Mr. Roosevelt started having other bad political luck about a week ago for the first time in his public career. His choice of Boston for an agricultural and pro-British speech was dismaying to some of his campaign followers. The Irish of Boston were considered least likely to love the British, and New England Democratic congressmen have been accustomed to vote against the Democratic farm program just as determinedly as the Republicans.

The unfortunate involvement of the President's secretary with a Negro policeman in vital New York was one of those breaks which Mr. Roosevelt has never thing with which Mr. Roosevelt has never been required to cope before encountered in his previous campaigns. His reference to Mr. Kennedy as "my" ambassador instead of the government's, was one of those troublesome slips which caused Willkie so much trouble earlier but which never happened to Mr. Roosevelt before. The break of the two Lewis, John and Joe, is likewise some-

Horse Race

This plague of Washington jitters does not necessarily mean that Mr. Willkie is in the bag and on the way home. Four years ago the President himself, in fact everyone around Democratic headquarters except Jim Farley, failed to expect the extent of the sweep that was to be theirs. A momentary relapse hit their spirits in the final drive although it did not in any way approximate what has happened lately.

Republicans too are less positive personally of the outcome than their published statements naturally must maintain. They are not trusting their ears for all they hear. They are confident, but somewhat just not certain. It's a horse race. You always think the favorite is going to win before the race.

Polls

It could not be otherwise in a campaign in which even the final polls leave the issue in doubt. The plain fact is that everything which had gone Roosevelt's way up to two or three weeks ago suddenly started going the other way, and no one can tell how far until the polls close Tuesday.

Britain's Future

Will Go to India If Isles Are Conquered, General Predicts.

By International News Service

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 4—India—and not Canada or the Antipodes—will be the seat of the British Empire should the British Isles fall to German might, and it is to the Indian Ocean that the mighty British fleet will go if forced from European waters.

That is the considered opinion of Gen. David P. Barrows, U. S. army retired, a keen analyst of international affairs as well as military matters.

"The main reason we are concerned with national defense is the peril of Britain," General Barrows said in a recent speech. "Therefore, I'm particularly interested in defending England."

"Our international position in the world is today different than it has been for 150 years, because of the ending of the balance of power in Europe."

Balance of Power

"In the past no one nation has acquired the balance of power on the mainland of Europe. It was to prevent a disruption of the balance of power that England went to war against Napoleon, against the Kaiser, and now against Hitler.

"Behind that balance of power in Europe our own statesmen have been protected, for no European nation could afford to attack us while it was surrounded by powerful and jealous neighbors.

"At various times England has yielded to our demands in part because her entrance into a preposterous war with the United States would upset the balance of power in Europe.

"And Germany did not dare resist the orders of President Theodore Roosevelt in the Venezuela incident because of fear of upsetting the balance of power."

"We have not been following Teddy Roosevelt's advice to speak softly but carry a big stick. Usually we have had little or no stick—and if we did have one it would have broken at the first whack.

"I believe that the British will stop Hitler at the English Channel, but that does not necessarily mean that she will attempt to restore the old balance of power.

"Italy is vulnerable. There is a fight that the British Navy and Air Force can undertake and win. "But Germany will never be conquered until her land forces are defeated—a task I believe beyond the power of any nation in the world, ourselves included.

"I can see signs that the English are assuming more and more an attitude similar to that which we have in the United States; namely, that what happens on the continent of Europe is not England's responsibility.

"A well-abolished dictatorship usually is a unphysical and Intellectual abilities of the tyrant have faded or disintegrated.

New Foreign Situation

"We must face the fact of a unified Europe with more munition factories and shipyards than we have. We confront an entirely new foreign situation.

"There is an expectation that if Great Britain falls and the British government goes to Canada, the British fleet will combine with Churchill in this respect. He did not say that the British fleet would come to Halifax or to the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

"Did you ever know the British government to attempt to defend anything someone else would?"

"Churchill says the function of the British fleet is to defend Great Britain. That does not mean it would come to the United States.

"My own view is that the only place for the British fleet to go is the place where the navy is so, based it can carry on effectively—the Indian ocean.

Why Not a Life Term for Mr. Roosevelt?

By Rupert Hughes

DOES F. D. R. mean For the Duration of Roosevelt? Is there a single argument for a third term that is not a better argument for a life term?

If a life term, why not hereditary rule? He has the family. Why not give the name Roosevelt the place in our annals that Hohenzollern has in German history? The Hohenzollerns were once a private family, too.

The argument for a third term has two cutting edges. They go like this:

After eight years the nation is such a paradise we must not let a devil like Willkie mar its perfection; at the same time, we are in such a frightful mess that only one person can get us out of it. He is the man who got us into it.

Even to criticize the rescuer is lese-majeste. So devotees of the One and Only greet his challenger with hisses and boos, eggs and tomatoes, just as Nazis treated people who showed disrespect to Hitler, who also was elected by the suffrage of his people. These Rooseveltians even booed Thomas Jefferson's name when he was quoted against a third term.

Most striking thing about this idolatry, this Rooseveltolatry, is that the idol shares it. Why argue that he is the only man in 131 millions? He admits it, himself.

The mere thought of a third term horrified many pious Democrats. For nearly three years the President was bombarded with questions, demands, prayers for a statement of his intentions. He just laughed. What right had the public to pry into his personal affairs?

Silence was, of course, consent, but his activities were louder than his silence. He made no pretense of grooming a successor. Even Hitler told who was to take over if any accident befell him. And accidents do befall presidents. Seven of our presidents have died in office and an eighth was stricken with apoplexy.

WHEN George Washington was given dictatorial authority in emergencies, he gave it back as soon as he could.

George Washington wrote while president:

"It is the peculiar boast of our country that her happiness is alone dependent on the collective wisdom and virtue of her citizens and rests not on the exertions of any individual."

That was true when we had all of four million population. But now that we have only 131 million, we are told we have no collective wisdom; we have only one individual with experience enough to run our government.

George Washington had no experience as a commander-in-chief, or as a president. He established our nation and set the precedents that have kept it from every threat of one-man worship until now. With sincere reluctance he accepted a second term and refused flatly to accept a third. He felt that it was only fair to give warning well in advance. He did not wait till the last moment.

Nothing could be more ingenious than twisting his words to prove that he did not really object to a third term. Third terms quote a small part of a letter he wrote to Lafayette. They omit to mention that he wrote it in 1788, before the Constitution was adopted, before Washington was even nominated. Lafayette had feared some president might try to perpetuate his power, but Washington tried to put him at ease:

"I see no propriety in precluding ourselves from the services of any man who in some great emergency shall be deemed universally most capable of serving the public."

Is Franklin D. Roosevelt universally deemed "most capable"? When Washington used "universally" he meant "unanimously." He was twice elected unanimously.

Polls show that a shift in favor of 5 per cent of the straw vote would elect Willkie.

IN that same letter Washington went on to say he did not fear self-perpetuation because "the proposed constitution" was "guarded so effectively in respect to the prevention of bribery and undue influence in the choice of president."

At the time he wrote the letters 13 loosely confederated states were poverty-stricken. The president could look to little but trouble. Washington did not foresee the intense centralization of our government, the taking-over, as a national problem of the poor, the control of business seized by the government, the wrecking of the civil service, the billions of dollars, the million of jobs, the incredible powers and undue influence given to a modern president.

Finally in the same letter Washington said he could not foresee "the least danger that the president will by any practicable intrigue ever be able to continue himself one moment in office, much less perpetuate himself in it, but in the last stage of corrupted morals and political depravity." And he added, "When a people shall have become incapable of governing themselves, and fit for a master, it is of little consequence from what quarter he comes."

That is the letter the third terms distort. Would Washington say that the present president has been able to continue himself in office "by any practicable intrigue"? Was manipulation of that 1940 "Democratic" convention "intrigue"? It was certainly "practicable." Kelly, Hague and Flynn and the other machine bosses selected to manage that "draft" would be insulted if it were said that their work was not "practicable."

Washington thought self-perpetuation in office of a president would be possible only "in the last stage of corrupted morals and political depravity." Have we reached that stage?

IT has taken our nation 150 years to reach the first threat of self-perpetuation. Rooseveltians believe that their candidate is the supreme leader, the Great Humanitarian. He can do no wrong. Granting that they are right, even Mr. Roosevelt will not live forever. His equal is not likely to appear for another 150 years, if then. In the meantime, isn't there likely to be a series of base and unworthy candidates—mere politicians, selfish men, ambitious men who will draft themselves and control conventions?

Once the wall that forbids a third term is broken down, won't evil men find it easy to enter? Wouldn't it be better not to break down the wall? Couldn't our benighted nation struggle along somehow for four years with a mere human being?

We have been in great dangers before. There have always been emergencies, foreign wars, civil war, financial panics. We have been invaded, our capital taken and sacked, our money worthless, our people divided and gone mad over fantastic politics. But we have always come through, and we have never kept a president for a third term.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

It was Thursday, Nov. 4, 1920. French newspapers commented at great length on the election of United States, particularly in regard to the effect it would have upon the treaty of Versailles, Mr. Harding having been among the leading opponents of American ratification of the league of nations covenant.

A huge torchlight parade followed by a jollification meeting at the front porch of the Harding home took place in celebration of Mr. Harding's election. The crowd was vast as to be beyond possibility of anything like an accurate estimate. One citizen who watched the demonstration for about two hours summed up the situation by saying, "If there's anybody at home, I don't know who they can be. In addition to the thousands of Marion county residents taking part many were here from Bucyrus, Mansfield, Delaware, Kenton, Columbus and virtually all other nearby towns and cities."

Honesty Pays

New York Has So Many Attorneys That Honesty Pays No Chance.

By DAMON RUNYON

IT SEEMS there is practically no future breaking in the greater city of New York. A young fellow contemplating a career of crime finds himself totally swamped by tough prosecuting attorneys, who think of sending a guy to stir.

It is no longer possible for a novice to get in any transaction in New York at even mild transactions as climbing porches or pockets. To 5 that the porch or pocket would belong to one of them. You can imagine a young man's embarrassment at having his duke found in a prosecuting attorney's kick.

It is most hazardous to have even a little busy racket going on for you in the big town. Public officials have to think twice before copping off as much as a small bribe. You cannot float the dinkiest kind of a phony bond issue or perpetrate the most commonplace swindle without attracting the attention of one or more of the P. A. T. a song that runs:

"Ashes to ashes
And dust to dust.
If Dewey don't get you
Why, Cahill must."

The Dewey referred to in the dirty, course, Thomas E. district attorney, county of New York, which is right in the little old Manhattan Island. Cahill is a United States attorney for the southern of New York. The one prosecutes purely town orneriness, while Cahill spears against federal laws.

Cahill, a Democrat, whose job is apparently the youngest United States attorney in the country and certainly one of the efficient. He has been in office a couple of years and has established a spectacular record. In the cases he has tried it scored 98 per cent convictions. He appears in the toughest cases that come to the city. He is extremely popular. There is talk that he may be the next candidate for mayor of New York.

DEWEY'S record is history. He was elected to his job by the people and he has a national reputation in a local position. He came close to being elected governor of New York and missed being nominated by the publicans for the presidency mainly because of political jealousy in his own state, but out of the convention a bigger figure went in.

He has been out making speeches for dewell Willkie and it is said if Willkie is elected he will be attorney general. However, friends think his logical political future governorship of New York. In any event, not likely that he will run again for attorney, which is one bright ray, at least the otherwise gloomy horizon of the New York.

In Brooklyn, William O'Dwyer, of New York, Dewey or Cahill, is the district attorney. In the same borough we have John Amen, a former prosecutor appointed by Gov. Lehman years ago to examine into political corruption. He has made an extraordinary recent report showing that he has 78 proceedings, criminal and disciplinary which 68 have been successful. More claims restitution to the public treasury $500,000 from rackets he pursued, as funds allocated to his inquiry up to this year of $650,000. You don't hear Amen's inquiry, but it is a lily.

AMEN and O'Dwyer do not conflict. A former cop, has also achieved national fame through his work of "order Inc." the blood curdling organization killed for pretzels. Several members in the death house at Sing Sing await we used to call the lethal juice when reporting executions. That shows you he is to lead a life of crime around New these times.

THESE are not all our prosecuting attorneys. We have several others. I Sam Foley, up in the Bronx, an excellent man who has written many of our laws. They are talking of him as mayor we hear Sam would rather wind up bench. Anyway, after sipping up the situation a fellow is better off around New remaining honest and upright.

POLICE HUNT YOUTH IN OHIO SLAYING

Shotgun Blast Kills Boy, 18, Near Jefferson, O.

By The Associated Press

JEFFERSON, O., Nov. 4.—Police here today sought Goodrich, 21, today on a charge of the murder of Andy Jans, 18, who was slain with a shotgun blast in a gravel pit 15 miles southeast of here.

Prosecutor Ward Cross charged Goodrich with murder after learning he had quarreled with his 18-year-old fiancée, accusing her of going with Jans and another girl to a farm near Richwood.

Cross said he learned McCourt, 21, "go for a ride" yesterday. A searching party headed by Sheriff Jerry Benson found the boy.

Cross reported his and Benson's investigation showed McCourt quarreled with the girl Saturday night. He left the home of his mother-in-law, Clarence Riffe, with whom he lived, early Sunday morning. He took Riffe's shotgun.

Mccourt appeared at the home of Ray Kellogg, another youth over whom he had quarreled with his father. He asked Kellogg to "go for a ride" but Kellogg refused, Cross said.

Early Vote Plea

As the time drew near for opening the polls at 6:30 a. m. tomorrow, officials renewed their appeal to "vote early."

"Make it as strong as possible," urged one official, "just as sure as the voters wait to vote with their husbands we're going to have an awful mess."

Housewives and others who have time early in the day to go to the polls should do so, officials advise. This will not only keep them out of a possible rush later, but will clear the way for persons who can't vote at any other time but over the noon hour or late in the day after work.

"Four years ago the voters cooperated splendidly," an official recalled. "We had no jams despite a large vote." (21,604, present record).

If there should be a jam up at the polls tomorrow at 6:30 p. m., closing time, then every one who is standing in line at that time will be permitted to vote. An officer will be placed at the end of the line at 6:30 and no more persons will be added to the line.

Supplies Distributed

Supplies for the election are all here. The 27 rural precincts appeared there Saturday afternoon at the board's offices and this afternoon between 2 and 4 p. m. the 30 city precincts were to call for theirs.

The board has on hand 25,000 each of the three major ballots—presidential, state-county-district and judicial—and lesser numbers of the special issues ballots which will go only to voters in certain school districts. Each voter will get the three major ballots.

In addition, Marion city school district voters and those in Prospect, Caledonia and Grand Prairie school districts will receive ballots on special school tax levies.

Candidates Busy

The candidates have shown no signs of shutting down early. This morning they were still hard at their campaigns for votes and likely will keep it up well into tomorrow.

Tomorrow Night a Majority of them will appear at their party headquarters, as in previous elections, and await the returns as they come in, precinct by precinct.

Both Republican and Democratic headquarters will be the scene of election parties tomorrow night, starting shortly after the returns begin to come in.

final addresses was not indicated. Aids said the subject matter might depend on what Democratic orators had to say previously, or on other developments. For the most part, however, the Republican nominee was looking forward to a comparatively quiet day.

On the eve of the first presidential election in which a third-term bid has been made, Willkie today proposed a constitutional amendment limiting the service of any president to eight years or less.

The Republican presidential nominee said in a statement that if the "common law against a third term" were repealed, "there would be no law to restrain President Roosevelt" or any of his successors, elected, hereditary or appointed, from any indefinite number of terms.

"When elected," Willkie said, "in order to prevent any subsequent demonstration of such ambitious views, in my first message to congress I shall recommend that they submit a constitutional amendment limiting the time any one president may serve to eight years or less."

In another statement calling on all voters to take part in tomorrow's election, Willkie reiterated a declaration made to the Republican national convention and to Saturday night's Madison Square Garden rally.

"I stand before you without a single pledge, promise or understanding of any kind," he said, "except for the advancement of your cause and the preservation of American democracy."

This assertion was made, he said, "despite last minute rumors which counsel of desperation spread about me to mislead voters."

"I have neither offered to nor discussed with any person any appointment to any cabinet or any other position," he added. "And I have never authorized anyone else to do so."

Willkie asked Americans to vote to show the world the force and power of the free ballot in a democracy dedicated to peace and progress.

"Voting is the only way our citizens have to control their government," he said. "Failure to vote is not only an abdication of the high privilege of American citizenship, but is an acquiescence in whatever loss of liberty may come. If the power of the bosses be not out-voted, * * *

"Voters must remember that their vote is secret and may not be learned by any man. They can vote as they please, regardless of the party in which they may be registered."

The Republican nominee also repeated his "broken pledges" charge against his Democratic opponent and asserted that Mr. Roosevelt's Cleveland speech "echoed my very strenuous pleas for (national) unity, but the echo came back thin and garbled by the interference of nearly 8 years of discrepancy between his promise and performance."

John L. Lewis, the C.I.O. chief, predicted a Willkie victory in a statement which said that the vote of labor would determine "whether it is capable of following its own developed and elected leadership, or whether it will accept the temporary leadership of an erratic, warmongering politician."

Green Non-Commitment

The president of the A.F.L., William Green, however, confined his pre-election statement to urging the A.F.L. membership to vote "for those candidates whose election you honestly and sincerely believe will best serve the interests of the masses of the people and the nation as a whole."

The national committee of Democrats for Willkie meanwhile was announcing that "final reports from 37 states indicate a trend of from 21 to 26 per cent of registered Democrats to Willkie."

Mayor F. H. LaGuardia, however, forecast a "smashing victory" for Mr. Roosevelt, and charged that numerous corporations backing Willkie had "interests in Germany and 'hoped to change the United States of America to United States, Inc.'"

Republican Chairman Martin, replying to President Roosevelt's charge that as a member of the house he had opposed administration farm legislation, termed the New Deal farm program a "tragic failure" and said he would support agricultural bills when they "will give some relief."

James A. Farley, who helped Mr. Roosevelt to his 1932 and 1936 victories, urged upstate New York party leaders to "put forth every effort" on election day in support of President Roosevelt and the entire Democratic ticket.

Farley said he had never "been more deeply concerned than at the present time for the success of the Democratic party in the state of New York."

11 MOTORISTS FACE CHARGES

Leaving Scene of Accident, Drunken Driving Among Offenses Charged.

Eleven motorists, including two charged with leaving the scenes of minor accidents, were hauled into court by city police and Marion state patrolmen over the weekend. Two men were arrested on drunken driving charges following traffic accidents.

Arrested on hit-skip charges Saturday were Harry Mosier, 52, of Adams street and Harold Baer, 29, of 800 Bellefontaine avenue, whose cars, police said, figured in accidents resulting in minor damage.

Police reported the Mosier automobile collided with a truck driven by Raymond Rayl of Cardington at South Main and Church streets Saturday morning. Mr. Rayl told police he jumped on the running board of the Mosier car and got the ignition key in an attempt to force the driver to stop. The car continued, however, and Mr. Rayl reported the license number to police who arrested Mr. Mosier at his home a short time later.

Parked Car Hit

Police said the Baer car struck a parked car owned by Paul McCleary of 677 Unanaher avenue in front of the McCleary home Saturday morning. A woman who saw the accident gave police the license number of the car and Baer was arrested at a Marion industrial plant where he is employed.

Harry Atkinson, 31, of 303 Barnhart street was arrested by police on a drunken driving charge about 11 p. m. Saturday after a car he allegedly was driving got out of control on Franklin street and struck a tree. He pleaded guilty before Municipal Judge Hazen this morning and was fined $100 and costs. His driving rights were suspended for six months.

Fred Scott, 50, of Columbus was arrested on a drunken driving charge by Marion highway patrolmen and city police after a car he allegedly was driving struck a culvert and overturned three miles south of Marion on the Prospect pike about 4 a. m. yesterday. He was released under $110 bond to appear in court Thursday.

Truck Driver Arrested

Fred Shankle, 54, of Dayton was arrested for the second time in two weeks yesterday on a charge of driving an overloaded truck near Marion. He was released under $110 cash bond which was declared forfeited when he failed to appear in court today.

John Ohde, 23, of Tiffin was arrested by state patrolmen one mile south of Marion last night on a charge of driving without a driver's license. He was released under $5 bond which was declared forfeited when he failed to appear in court.

Clifford Edson, 28, of Olive Hill, Ky., was arrested Saturday afternoon on a charge of driving an overloaded truck on Route 23 south of Marion. He pleaded guilty before Judge Hazen and was fined $25 and costs. The arrest was made by Marion state patrolmen.

Carl W. Uery, 18, of 133 West Mark street and Richard Keefe, 15, of 489 Park boulevard were arrested on reckless driving charges last night. They were released on bonds to appear in court today. Officers said the two youths were racing on Park boulevard and failed to stop for "several" stop signs.

Stop Sign Charges

Warren Augenstein, 19, of 753 Oak Grove avenue was cited to appear in municipal court this morning on a charge of failing to stop for a stop sign at Superior street and Delaware avenue. He pleaded guilty and was fined $5 and costs. The citation was issued Saturday noon by state highway patrolmen.

A citation to appear in court this afternoon on a charge of driving with insufficient lights was issued by state patrolmen last night to Orland H. Graff, 30, of 466 Davis street. Officers said the tail light of the car was partially missing. The citation was issued east of Marion on Route 30-S.

after will be treated as if they were registrants of draft age.

Board No. 1 now leads in volunteers with nine.

Throughout the country this week, The Associated Press reported from Washington, the thousands of local units which make up the nation's great selective service machine will start to work on the actual task of picking the first 800,000 physically fit young men who can best be spared from civilian life for a year's training in the army.

Must Work Speedily

Given a limited initial assignment, local selection boards from Boston to San Francisco undertook the job of filling the army's first requisition of manpower—900 men to the program—calling for 30,000 men to be filled, 35,000 candidates 103.

The initial assignment will put the boards on their mettle, for it allows only two weeks before the pioneer groups of rookies are due at specified army induction centers to take the oath and get into uniform. Subsequent requisitions will affect larger contingents of men, until by next June 15, the entire 800,000 are expected to be in camp.

Responsibility for actual selection of the men rests with 8,175 local boards all over the country. Selective Service Director Clarence A. Dykstra estimated that the last of the local boards would receive not later than today its copies of the "master list" of order numbers—the sequence in which individual registrants' serial numbers were drawn in last Tuesday's lottery. Once a board has its list, it can start mailing out the questionnaires which will develop the information determining the eligibility of the registrants for service.

Registrants whose names were drawn earliest will get the first questionnaires. Registrants have five days in which to answer and return the questionnaires. They reiterated predictions that the first call for 30,000 men would be filled largely by selective service volunteers.

First Advisory Board for Draft Work Organizes

First of Marion county's three advisory boards for draft registration to report definite plans for functioning is Board No. 2, serving Ward 4, 5 and 6.

The principal duties of the boards are to assist registrants in filling out questionnaires which will be mailed out starting very shortly. Later they may also assist registrants in claims or other matters. The advisory boards, made up of three members, may appoint associate members if they find their work piling up. They receive no pay whatsoever.

Chairman Named

Advisory Board No. 2 organized this morning, electing J. W. Llewellyn of 212 St. James street as chairman. H. L. Dowler, attorney, of 108 South Greenwood street was elected secretary. The third member is E. Paul Bachman of 007 King avenue.

Any draft registrant in District No. 2 (Wards 5 and 6) may contact any of the advisory board members for assistance. There is no charge for the board's services. Mr. Llewellyn may be reached at his insurance offices at 101½ South Main street, Mr. Dowler at his law offices in the Citizens building on West Center street and Mr. Bachman at the National City bank.

Others Who Can Help

Chairman Llewellyn today also issued a request that various notaries public in the county cooperate with the registrants by taking oaths and affirmations for the young men without charge. Others who may administer oaths required in the draft questionnaires are: members or chief clerks of draft boards, members or members of advisory boards, government appeal agents, any postmaster, notary public or any other official authorized by law to administer oaths. No fee should be charged for this service.

The other two advisory boards in the county, for District 1 (Wards 1, 2 and 3) and for District 3 (rural), are expected to organize shortly.

Hitler's Reported Peace Offensive Looks Like Failure

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

Reports in Washington and London that Herr Hitler is preparing a fresh peace offensive may be apocryphal (Berlin denies them) but still are important as emphasizing that he war has passed the possibility of peace by agreement, barring some strange and wholly unexpected development.

Hard as it is to say, it's difficult to see how the conflict can be settled excepting by the total defeat of one side or the other. Europe just isn't big enough to hold both Adolf Hitler and Britain.

Should it prove to be true that the fuhrer is indeed preparing peace terms it would, of course, be significant as indicating that he no longer feels confident he can smash England. That would be his reason for stopping now.

The reported terms provide that "the British empire, being undefeated and unconquered," should remain as it is. Europe, "being conquered by Germany," should be regarded as outside England's sphere of influence.

That would be a grand bargain for the Nazi leader. However, even if John Bull were willing to forego his oath to free his allies from German subjugation, he would seem to me to be inviting disaster to accept such terms.

Peace under an arrangement like that couldn't be lasting. Hitler has sworn time and again to destroy the British empire. Under the circumstances one would expect English officials to greet any such peace terms with what it has said in effect before—that it is too ample of gift and too worldly-wise to play the part of little Miss Riddlingood. That is to say, the English don't trust Herr Hitler's word.

While England has a tough row to hoe, the going just now seems to me to be considerably more promising than it was a while back. Making predictions in this mad war is like crossing Niagara falls on a tight-rope, but I venture to say it's far from sure that Mussolini didn't confer a great boon on Britain when he lashed out at Greece.

Instead of achieving a blitzkrieg, as they expected, the Fascists have tossed priceless bases into England's lap, thereby gaining a long way toward nullifying their efforts.

STORM CAUSES HEAVY DAMAGE IN GUAM ISLAND

Crop and Property Losses High

High Plains

By The Associated Press

GUAM, Nov. 4.—Heavy property damage and ruined crops lay today in the wake of a typhoon which swept across Guam island yesterday but took no human life. Striking this Pacific island outpost of the United States, wind which at times reached 110 miles an hour tore roofs from buildings and made 40 American families and three families of the native ranchers homeless.

The banana crops and garden crops were destroyed along with 80 per cent of the coconut crop. Water, electricity and telephone services were disrupted.

Guam island, site of a naval station, is 1,700 miles east of Manila. It is 34 miles long and 10 miles wide, with an estimated population in 1934 of 22,700, mostly native chamorros, who speak a Malay dialect.

MOTORCYCLIST NEAR SYCAMORE KILLED

Wayne Conaghan, 19, Dies in Crash with Auto.

Special to The Star

SYCAMORE, Nov. 4.—Wayne Maan Conaghan, 19, whose home was a mile west of Sycamore, was killed instantly when the motorcycle he was riding and a car driven by Harry Haverer of Sycamore collided at the intersection of Routes 67 and 103 here at 6 p. m. Sunday. Mr. Haverer, who is about 30 years of age, is said to have suffered minor injuries, and was taken to the office of Dr. Montgomery for treatment. Conaghan's death was caused from a fractured skull, according to Dr. J. A. Probst of Upper Sandusky, Wyandot county coroner. Both machines were demolished.

Conaghan was born May 2, 1921, at the home west of Sycamore, to John H. and Florence Mann Conaghan, and was a farmer. Surviving with the parents are a brother, Dale, at home, and his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Newton Mann of near Brownstown. He was a member of the United Brethren Sunday school.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Wednesday at the home and 2:30 p. m. at the United Brethren church, with Rev. J. E. Shaffer, pastor, officiating.

This is the second fatal accident in the community in less than a week. Last Monday night John H. Husey, 23, of Sycamore was killed almost instantly when a car in which he was riding crashed into a freight train at Lenart, two miles south of Sycamore.

SPAIN SEIZES CONTROL OF TANGIER ZONE TODAY

TANGIER, Tangier International Zone, Morocco, Nov. 4.—The Spanish wiped out the last vestige of international control in Tangiers today, taking complete charge of the strategic zone on the north coast of Africa on their own account.

The move consisted of an order by the high command of the Spanish occupying forces ending activities of the international control commission, the legislative assembly and the international information office.

The Tangier zone is of vital importance in the European war because it commands the approach to the Strait of Gibraltar from the Atlantic.

Spain's action was considered significant in the light of her demands for what she calls her "rightful territories" in Africa.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Hank and Bill Arrive at the Farmhouse with a Strange Story of Plots and a Mystery Phone Call.

"In the living room," I told Philip, voicing a decision I already had made. "Thank you," he said, and I guessed he was finding speech difficult. "Come with me, Avis," he directed, and the two went into the living room, closing the doors after them. Almost at once the telephone from the guardhouse rang again. "Two boys who say they are your nephews ask to come in," the guard said, and again my father's voice spoke from his extension. "Bring them to the side door for identification," he commanded. "Send three men with them. Mr. Underwood will be right down."

It was but a few minutes later, although it seemed an eternity, before Harry Underwood at the door ushered in Bill and Hank, plainly in a state of excited tension. Their eyes roved searchingly over the room before they rushed up to me.

"Has Avis Arlen come here yet?" Bill demanded in a whisper. "Yes, she has," I returned. "She's in the library with Mr. Veritzen."

"Then we're too late," Hank said despondently. "We hoped we'd beat her out here, so she wouldn't come in."

Orders from Leslie. "It's all right," I assured him. "We know she's up to some mischief, and Grandpa Spencer is keeping her here to watch her. Now come into the dining room and have something to eat, and tell me what you've discovered. Katie is in the kitchen, but you can keep your voices low so she won't hear you."

It was a strange story that they unfolded. Bill was trying to call the farmhouse, and in some error of the operator he was put upon a line over which Avis Arlen was talking to some man whom they did not know, but who, I readily surmised, was Jack Leslie.

"You know what you're going to do, don't you, sweetheart?" the man had said. "You're going out to the Graham farmhouse—at this point William strangled his gentlemanly instinct to put back the receiver and, instead, listened shamelessly."

"Ask for Veritzen," the man had gone on. "He'll be there, and he'll vouch for you. He has to. Hear what he has to tell you, and then wait your chance to let me as I have planned. Do you understand?"

"Oh! perfectly, darling!" Avis had trilled, and the boys had lost no time in getting started for the farm. But they did lose time later in taking a train as far as Patchogue and a taxi from there, while Avis must have travelled by fast car.

"What does it all mean, Auntie Madge?" they asked. I explained about the siege as best I could, and told them my father would assign them to places upstairs, as they must not go near the children until they were sure they had no fever germs in them.

"We've talked to you minute first," Hank asked hesitantly, and when I had said, "Of course," Bill slid out of the room, saying simply: "Hank's all right, and he wants to tell you about it." Then Hank came over to me, and kissed me with warm, loving gratitude, and as he rushed on into boyish, awkward speech, I cast away the fear for the boy's future which had been mine for so long.

"I certainly was on an awfully wrong track," Hank said ruefully. "I didn't exactly like to see things suffer, but I was curious to see how long they'd stand it."

Hank Finds Himself. "But that doctor chap showed me just where I was coming out, and that play I saw with you finished it up. I know now just where I stand, and I'm watching myself all the time. And I've asked old Bill to help watch. I'm going to be all right, always. You'll see!"

"I know you are, Hank," I said gently. "But don't overdo the watching over yourself. You mustn't get morbid."

"I won't," he said, but I found I could not make myself the same promise as the night wore on with

Marion Man Wed To Lodi Girl in Saturday Nuptials

The marriage of Miss Frances Snyder, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Snyder of 620 Oak street, and Ralph Longacre, son of Mr. and Mrs. Longacre of Mechanism, was solemnized Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Central Christian church parsonage at Bellefontaine avenue. Dr. Harry L. Bell, pastor, officiated.

Miss Ardis Douce of Caledonia and Clarence Kalk of Chardon were the attendants.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Longacre are graduates of Caledonia High school. Mrs. Longacre has been employed at Sawyer Sanatorium. Mr. Longacre, a graduate of Ohio Northern university, is employed in the engineering department of the North Electric Mfg. Co., Gallion. They are at home at 641 East Main street in Gallion.

The bride was attired in a colonial gown of ivory taffeta trimmed in antique lace. Her shoulder length veil of illusion fell from a Juliet cap of seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of white bride's roses.

Mrs. William M. Keller of Cleveland, sister of the bride and her only attendant, wore a gown of ivory taffeta similar in design to the bride's gown, and carried Talisman roses.

Edward J. Russo of Marion served Mr. and Mrs. Longacre as best man. Dr. William M. Keller of Cleveland and Robert Bush of Marion were ushers.

The bride's mother was in a river blue dress and wore a corsage of red rose buds and white mums. Mr. Longacre wore a corsage of Talisman roses.

Following a reception in the church parlors the couple left on a motor trip to Texas and other points of interest in the south, including Old Mexico. Upon their return they will live at the James apartments on North Greenwood street.

Mr. and Mrs. Roby attended Woodstock college. Mrs. Roby has been employed in the offices of the Ohio Farmers' Insurance Co. at LeRoy. Mr. Roby is associated with the insurance firm of Watrous & Roby, Inc.

Among the out-of-town guests at the wedding were Miss Elsie Steiner and A. C. Steiner of Plainfield, Ill.; Dr. Grundy Steiner of Urbana, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Braun Jr. of daughter Gretchen and Miss Mary Roby of Toledo, Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Bates of Woodstock, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Ebert of Cleveland, Mr. and Mrs. Kurt C. Warmbein, Miss Marian McDowell and Miss Lucille Beck of Akron, Howard Schmid of Alliance, Mrs. Katherine Schuler of Smithville, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Jacobs of Fredericktown, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Walrous and Robert Cunningham of Marion.

Well, the election speeches of both parties have certainly gone through the list of radio programs like a hot iron. In a wheat field, Eddie Camer Fred Allen, Fibber McGee, the Hit Parade—and lots of other big time shows had to get off the air so that the Reps. and the Dems. could practice their free speech. Although free speech is just a figure of speech when you consider the cost of radio time. Radio is on place where silence is solder. Anyway, the comedy shows have to get off the air for a while—or, as one cynic said, has they?

More of County's Draft List

Another installment in The Star's list of names of Marion county men whose numbers were drawn in the national draft lottery at Washington Tuesday appears below. It picks up where yesterday's list left off.

The first number listed in each instance is the national lottery number—which shows the order of the drawing at Washington. Not all the national lottery numbers are listed because they did not all apply to Marion county. This accounts for the fact that a great many national lottery numbers were skipped in the list.

After the national number in each instance appears the registrant's serial number in parenthesis. Then come the names and addresses of men with that serial number. Because Marion county's three draft boards have different totals of registered men, some of the numbers listed here affect only one man, some affect two and some affect three.

"Blackouts"

The medical examination of any candidate for the United States Army is severe—for officers more severe than for privates. And the most severe of all is for military pilots of airplanes. Besides the ordinary examinations the pilot has to pass certain special tests. The eyes and ears are the given most careful scrutiny—the ability of the ears to keep clear of the changing atmospheres, and the function of the ears to maintain equilibrium are apparently individual traits and they must be tested.

The special stresses for the military pilot, according to Fortune Magazine, are (1) air neurosis, which is a breakdown of coordination, caused by flying in dangerous and exciting circumstances; (2) lack of oxygen at high altitudes; and (3) the "blackout," sudden blindness caused by effect of centrifugal force on the blood stream during the turn out from a high dive.

Oxygen Tests

Oxygen lack in high altitudes causes an attack on the judgment of the pilot. It can be imitated experimentally and it is remarkable to see candidates tested under conditions of low oxygen pressure. They are asked questions to which they either reply in writing or by the spoken voice, and they are given tests with instruments. When the oxygen pressure gets low they think they are replying perfectly sensibly, but what they say makes no sense.

Oxygen starvation in high altitudes has been studied for many years. In high altitudes, the pressure of the oxygen falls, although the percentage of oxygen is the same. The force for "pushing the oxygen into the blood" decreases. If it were a simple matter of rarefied atmosphere we could make up for it by taking more breaths, but the pressure must be increased also. The problem is, of course, solved by the use of oxygen masks—more or less perfectly. The masks and apparatus are constantly being improved.

Blackout Bugaboo

The blackout is by no means so easily controlled, although Commander John R. Paffen, of the Navy, is confident that he and his associates are on the track of a solution. Both the British and the Germans have used a pneumatic belt for pilots. By contracting the belt during dives, it tends to forestall the accumulation of blood in the lower parts of the body, and keeps the blood supply to the brain more nearly normal. A crouching position during the dive also helps to maintain circulation in the brain by pressing the brain nearer the heart. The pilots are not allowed to eat beans or other food which causes gas. If the blackout problem is solved, it will be as important as the discovery of the bomb sight. The strength of American planes allows them to dive at great speeds.

No examination, or psychometric test, has yet been devised, which is able to distinguish whether a pilot's nerves will stand the gait of air fighting or not.

5 - Day Forecasts of Weather Okay If Timed Right

WASHINGTON—The weather man confessed today he was doing fairly well predicting the weather five days in advance, but was having trouble putting it in the right place.

Semi-weekly forecasts, each predicting weather on a broad regional basis five days in advance, were inaugurated recently on an experimental basis.

Dr. C. G. Rossby, assistant chief of the weather bureau, checking what was predicted in each period against what actually happened, said:

"Precipitation forecasts, while far from perfect, have been pretty successful, and have been improving with practice. Temperature forecasts haven't worked out so well, due to errors in timing, but ought to improve with experience."

Timing, he went on, was the crux of the problem. The weather experts, on the basis of reports from thousands of stations, could pretty well see what general weather conditions were ahead, but how they affect some specific area depends on wind speeds, local ground characteristics, and many other factors.

Dr. Rossby noted some "bright spots" in the five-day forecasts, mostly Florida, New England, most of the Great Lakes region, and parts of the middle west.

He likened forecasting to baseball in the matter of performance because it's averages that count more than single day feats.

Perfection, he continued, was not nearly so important in the five day forecasts as the familiar semi-daily predictions. The five-day forecasts were designed, for instance, to warn army officers at maneuvers, engineers at hydro-

RED CROSS CAMPAIGN PLANNED AT GALION

C. L. Baxter To Head Annual Roll Call.

Special to The Star

GALION, Nov. 4.—With the appointment during the week of C. L. Baxter, manager of the local office of the Ohio Fuel Gas Co., as Red Cross roll chairman, Galion is ready to start the twenty-fourth annual drive for funds on Armistice day.

The roll call drive is sponsored here by the Kiwanis club. Some time this week Mr. Baxter will announce the names of his workers. He has set the goal this year at 1,700 members.

Galton's percentage of what was collected last year was used for work in the schools. A partial report shows that $952.75 was used for correctional work such as tonsil operations for children who would otherwise have no had this work done. A summary of the work for the past year indicates that $1,194.75 was diverted to remedial work, 106 pupils benefiting by medical and dental treatment, tonsil operations and other needs.

Mrs. W. P. Kinsale, chairman of the Galion chapter, said that additional supplies have been received here for war relief work. The chapter paid out $43.99 for clothing and $15 for disabled ex-service men's relief during the year, according to a report by C. L. Merkel who served as chairman of the roll call last year.

DR. F. M. EDWARDS' DISCOVERY FOR CONSTIPATION

Benefit Nation of Sufferers

COLUMBUS, OHIO: For over 20 years Dr. F. M. Edwards (widely known physician) successfully treated scores of patients for constipation and the headaches, lack of energy and mental dullness which often result.

This wise Doctor knew liver bile must flow freely every day into your intestines or fatty foods can't be properly digested and you may become constipated. So he kept this in mind when he perfected his famous Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets.

Olive Tablets, being purely vegetable, are wonderful, yet they assure gentle, thorough bowel movements and ALSO help stimulate bile flow. Treat your goodness TONIGHT! 16¢, 30¢, 60¢.

Tomorrow you will choose your State Representative who will serve you for the next two years. My pledge to you is, no now or increased taxes. To aid in keeping Ohio on a sound financial basis. An administration which will in no way invite criticism.

Each Funeral Is a Personal Tribute...

A funeral director must comply with laws and some established customs. However, there are many points upon which the wishes of the family may rule.

At the Schaffner-Denzer Funeral Home, we have no fixed plan. We realize that a funeral is the tribute that a family pays to a loved one, and in every way possible defer to their wishes. Where needed, or asked we furnish guidance. This makes each funeral a personal tribute.

Without obligation anyone may call for further information, or send for our free booklet, "Facts About Funerals."

NEW U. S. RECORD SET BY REGISTRATIONS

60 Millions Eligible To Vote Tomorrow.

By The Associated Press
WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—Record-smashing registrations which may qualify more than 60,000,000 persons to vote tomorrow have the politicians guessing as to how these new voters will mark their ballots.

Allowing for the same ratio of stay-at-homes as in former general elections, it is estimated that roughly 50,000,000 may cast votes tomorrow. In round numbers 43,000,000 of 55,000,000 eligibles voted in 1932, when President Roosevelt had a plurality of almost 11,000,000.

What party leaders won't know for sure after the ballots are counted is why registrations are breaking all-time records in the large cities and even in many smaller towns. All down the line, but particularly in New York, Pennsylvania, and California, voters in increasing numbers have signified their intention of exercising their historic rights.

Normal population gains and more persons reaching voting age explain the increase in some instances, but the intensity of the campaign and unusual interest in issues appear to account for others.

For example, women voters are responsible for approximately 45 per cent of the 3,388,741 registered in New York City, where the total registrations is up 488,557 over 1932. The state as a whole has registered 6,950,117, an increase of 717,783 over 1932.

Pennsylvania's final registration figures were announced as 5,022,323, almost half the population of the state. The total is divided: Republicans 2,784,040; Democrats 2,117,011; other parties 87,472.

California's official registration is 4,052,393, including 2,419,623 Democrats and 1,452,373 Republicans.

The Italian government has contracted with a well known European company to establish a modern shoe factory in Haiti to train Haitians to become skilled workers and administrative employees a return for duty concessions.

CORRECTION
Walter F. Mochel of north of Waldo, one of three Marion county men with Serial No. 153, first number drawn in the draft lottery, is the father of three children instead of two as The announced last Tuesday in the holders of the first number said today. He has a son years old and two daughters and 4 years of age.

NOW — Summing Up My Opponent's Record

This Is How He Stands

HE VOTED to compel County Boards of Education to redistrict Counties at sacrifice State funds. He was in the Assembly when this law was passed.

HE VOTED to increase the school deficit, and increase the taxpayers burden by $200,000, interest payments Marion County lost $14,236.76 in relief money because He layed down on the job.

HE VOTED to reduce the 65% majority vote on special levies. These are new taxes transferred to the local subdivision and taxpayers from the state.

HE VOTED to increase his own salary from $1,000 to $2,000 a year.

HE VOTED to increase his own mileage from 3 to 5 cents per mile, then falsified his mileage report from 88 to 108 miles per round trip.

HE VOTED against Old Age Pensions by voting for an appropriation, less by 450,000 than required to meet its obligations. Yet he promised an increase.

He boasts of his labor record, yet I fail to find one in the record.

He agreed to a 10% reduction in salary when County Auditor, in 1933, when taxes were hard to pay. Two years later tried to recover this money by a suit in court.

His lack of business experience and 20 years in public office, and on the public pay roll, have dulled his sensibility to the needs of the Citizens of Marion County; therefore this unsympathetic attitude toward their problems. Voters You Make the Decision Tomorrow.

I solicit your support and pledge Diligence and Honesty in the administration of this office.

STARS AND STRIPES FIRST—These longshoremen at Wilmington, Cal., staged a sitdown strike for more than two hours, protesting that the American flag on the Onoe Maru, a Japanese freighter, background, was flying at a lower level than the Japanese colors.

TO DROWN OUT THE BOMBS—While they huddle in a subway at Aldwych station, these Londoners are entertained by a musical concert which drowned out, at least partly, the roar of airplane motors and bursting bombs overhead.

FOR OUR GOOD NEIGHBOR—This hairdress, named the Peruvian pompadour, was designed as a gesture of friendship to South America. It is accented with a high Spanish comb which is filigreed in an ancient Mayan pattern.

FOUR OF A KIND—When four members of the same family appeared before the U. S. supreme court to be admitted to practice before the nation's highest tribunal, even the staid associate justices were mildly upset. Pictured, left to right, are Thelma H. Waybright, Edgar W. Waybright, Sr., Senator Claude Pepper of Florida, Edgar W. Waybright, Jr., and Roger J. Waybright. The Waybrights are from Jacksonville, Fla.

BILLET-DOUX?—The young French girl, pictured above in Vichy, capital of unoccupied France, is reading a letter which has been sent her from someone in the occupied section of the country. Although the letter has passed through German censorship, apparently there was enough news in it to make her happy.

METALS IN WAR—A large number of the exhibits at the National Metal Congress and Exposition in Cleveland feature the important role played by metals in national defense. Here Phyllis Hardy is shown with a torpedo head, background, and a 9.2-inch projectile, foreground.

CROSS FOR A HERO—For his heroism in extinguishing a fire in a bombing plane instead of taking to his parachute, 18-year-old Sergeant John Hannah, left, of the Royal Air Force, has been awarded the Victoria Cross. The plane was piloted by Pilot Officer Connor, right.
